Attorney to Get Writings by Ray

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)— More than 20,000 words written by James Earl Ray in a Memphis jail cell are apparently to become part of a private collection being assembled by Birmingham attorney Arthur Hanes Jr.

Ray, who pleaded guilty March 10 to the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., prepared the handwritten notes and gave them to writer William Bradford Huie in exchange for legal fees Huie paid Hanes and his father.

Huie now says he will give the Ray notes to the younger Hanes. "I imagine he'll write a book one of these days," said Huie.

HOME INDUSTRY

LONDON — British urged to take holidays at h

ADVERTISEMENT

Makes Eating W
FALSE TF Easier o
Clinical tests pr
eat and chew bett
more effective—
a little FASTE FASTEETH is that holds d
makes them
FASTEETH
There's no
Dentures health.
Get FA

ADVERTISEMENT